Steven Andrews is a revival-driven Country Blues artist blending Delta-inspired guitar work with honest, faith-rooted storytelling. After nearly a decade of live experience and two EPs, a defining mid-flight emergency and a near-regretted industry deal reshaped his artistic direction. Anchored in 1 John 4:18, "Perfect love casts out fear," he chose conviction over compromise. His music reflects real life, real faith and a commitment to handcrafted authenticity. Steven Andrews creates guitar-driven songs with backbone, belief and intention.

STEAL MY JOY - PRESS LONG

Sometimes the most powerful blues songs are born at a crossroads.

With “Steal My Joy,” Swiss Country Blues artist Steven Andrews introduces the first single from his upcoming debut album, scheduled for release in late 2026. Rooted in Delta-inspired guitar work and driven by a revival-like energy, the track blends the grit of traditional Blues with the storytelling clarity of classic Country. Built around raw guitar riffs, Blues harp textures and a commanding vocal delivery, “Steal My Joy” carries the spirit of old American roots music while delivering a message that feels strikingly personal and contemporary.

The song draws on two defining moments from Andrews’ life. In the opening verse, Andrews references the legendary crossroads story of Robert Johnson, the mythical tale of a deal with the devil for musical success. But Andrews’ version takes a different turn. Several years ago, he found himself on the verge of signing a lucrative contract that would have meant giving up control over his own artistic direction. Instead of taking that deal, he chose independence and remained true to his vision — even though it meant starting over on his own terms.

The second verse is rooted in a real experience during a domestic flight. Just moments before takeoff, a passenger suffered a severe medical emergency. The situation left a deep impression on Andrews and stayed with him long after the incident. In the midst of reflecting on that moment, he found clarity in the message of First Epistle of John 4:18: “Perfect love casts out fear.” That idea ultimately became the emotional center of the song.

“Steal My Joy” emerges as a revival-driven Country Blues anthem about faith, integrity and inner resilience. With its driving groove and memorable hook, the song carries a simple but powerful declaration: no circumstance, temptation or fear can take away the joy that comes from standing firm in what you believe.

Steven Andrews is a Country Blues artist who merges the raw roots of Delta Blues with the clarity and honesty of traditional Country music. His sound is guitar-driven, handcrafted and defined by a strong, unmistakable voice. After nearly a decade of live experience and two EP releases, Andrews has developed a clear musical identity — authentic Country Blues with conviction. His songs speak about faith, integrity, inner resilience and the conscious decision to reject compromise. Steven Andrews stands for honest music with substance — raw, direct and deeply emotional.
